

Danny McGinlay

Comedian, DJ, Trophy Boyfriend.

Danny McGinlay has been doing stand up comedy since the tender age of sixteen and has worked with everyone from Jimeoin to Destiny's Child.

In 2000 Danny finished high school and has focused completely on comedy ever since, in that short time has achieved more than some comics in a lifetime! His 2001 Melbourne Fringe festival show "Danny McGinlay's World of Gravy" was a surprise smash which sold out the last two weeks of its season and won him "Best Comedian" at the Fringe Club awards.

From this, McGinlay became the regular weekend funny guy on Triple J during the summer of 2001 – 2002. Soon after he was selected by the Melbourne International Comedy Festival and Foxtel's Comedy Channel as one of the hottest comedians in Australia; and was showcased in the 2002 "Comedy Zone".

From his success in that show McGinlay was head hunted by FOX FM to be part of their breakfast show. Unfortunately he was in such high demand as a stand up he had to choose between breakfast radio & stand up. When McGinlay chose stand up, his true passion; Fox wouldn't let him go and he now happily appears on the Fox as one of their most popular DJs.

Recently, McGinlay performed his first solo show at the Melbourne International Comedy Festival. A critically acclaimed cooking show entitled "The Monumental Cookup" which The Age called "A scorching set of hilarious anarchy" and "A stunning debut"

TV wise, McGinlay has worked on Rove[Live] and even more recently appeared on Big Brother Insider. You can catch Danny performing at random comedy clubs all over Melbourne. His unique brand of high octane comedy blows all audiences away [but in the good way].
